Copperheads of the most intense strife. Their uponations are no better than those of Vallandigham, strength. They seem to rely upon the old organized d, and fendle on, and they agree and sympathize th these men. So the idea of excluding Vallandigham David D. Rose, United States Marshal of Indiana, and a delegate from his State, is just in from Washington, where he saw the President yesterday. He represents the President as saying to him that an Administration to be successful must take care of its friends, and see that its patronage is in the hands of its friends, and that he intended to carry out this idea fully after the Philadelphia Convention met. Rose also says that the President promised him the Post-Office at Ladianapolis.

The principal topic of conversation among the delegates to-day is the admission or rejection of Vallandigham. One party asserts that he must be excluded, and another that he must be admitted. The objection is not to him personally, but he is named as a representative man of what are known as peace Democrats during the war, and the idea of the war Democrats and Republicans is to exclude all such from the Convention. They are especially bitter against Vallandigham and the Woods, who, they say, must not be coaxed to stay out but must be put out, if they attempt to enter. Gen. James B. Steedman has drawn up a Resolution which he says he will offer immediately after the temporary organization of the Con vention, to exclude all from the South who were original Secessionists, and all from the North who, during the war, were convicted of disloyal acts, or who countenanced resistance to the draft. This is intended especially to reale Vallandigham. Gov. Orr of South Carolina is said to be in favor of it, and the names of most of the leading Southerners are mentioned in the same connection. Mr. Vallandagham says the talk against him is all clamor, and will amount to nothing. He says his credentials are in his pocket, and they are certified to just as others are. and whoever attempts to put him out will find hard work of it. If they rule him outhe says they will have to rule out a majority of the Democrats from Ohio, all from Missouri, all from Maryland, and all from Kentucky, as the resolution he claims will not mention names, but must apply to a particular class of men. A reform is talked of the Ohio delegation, that no man shall speak without the consent of a majority of his delegation. Mr. Vallandigham says he has heard of this, and believes it to be aimed at him, and that if he wants to speak he will speak, and if the Convention attempts to put him down it will forfeit all claims to Democratic respect. He did not however, come here to make speeches. He says he will be in the Convention, and all attempts to keep him out will fail. Mr. Ewing of Ohio. If the latter were here, he would be made President of the Convention. Gen. Frank Blair will not be here. Mr. Winthrop of Massachusetts and John A. Dix are named in connection with the Presidency, and also Mr. Ashman, who presided over the National Republican Convention of 1850.

The rumors that there is to be a disturbance excite much amusement among Republicans. Mayor will be settled. Mr. Ashmun is still favorably spoken of as McMichael states that, from all information he has re-hall be nothing but the most courteous treatment. It is noticeable that the most conspicuous Copperheads of the city are doing the honors, Mr. William B. Reed being especially conspicuous. liam Cornell Jewett is here in impressible and vivacious humor, and has written a letter to President Johnson, and other people, which intimates that Jewett is not very well pleased with the Convention. He thinks the Republic is upon the verge of ruin, and that the people only can restore harmony, and that everything can be called lovely. The chances of Mr. George Francis Train for the presidency of the Convention are increasing hourly. Thomas B. Florence is his principal Thurlow Weed and his wagon-load of rich men have not yet arrived. The New-York Soldiers' delegation, under the lead of that superb soldier, J. Hobart Ward, are expected to-morrow. The Southern delegations are coming n rapidly. Gov. Orr of South Carolina, and Ex-Gov. Perry are here. The New-Orleans delegation are here, and busy themselves in explaining the unprovoked and vilainous attempt of a small body of white Radicals to mob the City of New-Orleans. The President is in hourly communication with his body-guard, Wendell, Coyle and Blair, who are busy, noisy and omnipresent. The indications are that the Convention will not be able

o meet for organization on Tuesday, as the wigwam in which it is to be held will not be finished in time. The structure is built of wood, and its capacity is about 7,000 people. The workmen just commenced putting the roof on yesterday. The working for it has been increased, and o-day they are as busy as bees endeavoring to get the wilding finished. The neighborhood in which the wigwam is situated presented a lively scene to-day. The citzens in the immediate vicinity were very indignant that he anthorities should allow the peace and quiet of the abbath to be broken by the werking on the building. In several of the churches in the neighborhood allusion to the matter was made. The people of Philadelphia are of a pious disposition, so much so that the passenger cars are hibited from ranning on Sund y. So you can imagine nat the idea of working on a building which is to old a mere lot of politicians has made them indignant and sgusted. If the wigwam should not be completed in me there is talk of the Convention being held in the Academy of afusic. In the several vacant lots adjacent to e wigwam, a dozen or more of temporary wooden antics have been erected for the sale of whisky, , beer and refreshments. By this it is evident a large wd is experted. The delegates are e idently supposed or nangry men, for a large room is partitioned off in the igwam, and has been leased to a well-known caterer ie, who is to have a restaurant for the sale of liquors and treshments. The distance of the wigwam from the Contial Hotel is about two miles. This is a great incor on here, especially to the country delegates, who don't tten have a chance to dine in a city hotel, and the idea ssing any of their meals werries toom dreadfully. The tinental and Gerard Hotels are the headquarters of a ge majority of the delegations. Most of the Southern elegate are at the Lapierr, the Pennsylvanians are at ne Merchant's. The Saratoga delegation will be at the

So far as practical results are concerned the Convention promises very little. I have it from good authority, that the plan agreed upon for the action of the Convention is he adoption of a series of resolutions indersing the mey of the President and denouncing Congress, and an surress to be issued to the country which will embody the principles set forth in the call concerning the Conven-

No third party will be formed. The mass of the dels, no doubt, believed when they came here that a new arly would be organized, but the leaders of the move neut, both Democratic and Republican, hesitate at such step. They are mutually afraid of being swallowed up and losing their identity. If the plan is carried out, the Convention will be a copy of that held as saint oga last week. There is some talk of appointing an or curive committee, and the proposition is being actively carry as d, but the Democrats are opposing it, and declare that they will not put in the hands of such a committee the power to call another Convention which shall bind

Mr. Montgomery Blair has been running the machine thus far, and it has worn a decided y Democratic aspect. He is un lerstood to favor the admission of all delegates presenting themselves from the South, whether ginal Secresionists or not. He says that if they are willing to enter the Convention under the call, it is poof that they have sincerely repented their and that they should be gladly welcomed. As regards Vallandigham and the Woods, however, they are looked upon as mischief-makers, here only to disturb the harpast defeats are owing to them, and they are eager to east Light, the only gam, them out. These unfortunates do not stand a show of recognition, even the Peace Democrats who acted with them

> A ve y shadowy notion of what is to follow the Convention seems to prevail. The leaders say that they will declare the principle and it will remain for the people to rally to its support, but they do not propose to give them a party organization to combine and direct their parties and to believe that the people, who will indorse the platform they adopt, will rally for the support of and elect that candidate to office, be he Democrat or Republican, who places himself squarely on that platform. A prominent New-York Democrat told me that organi zation was no where necessary except in New-York, and intimated that things were so fixed there that the Demoeratic party would make its nominations acceptable to the Republicans who were represented in the Saratoga Con-

Factious Spirit Among the Southern Delegates in Washington.

Special Dispatch to The N. Y. Tribune. WASHINGTON, August 12, 1866.

The factions spirit of the delegates now in Washington be speak for their efforts in Philadelphia a row. The question of the admission of Vallandigham, Wood and Stephens is dis cussed to-night in the hotels with considerable ferver, pro and con; and I am impressed, should these three be rejected, the Southerners, believing they have been and are their true friends, will boot. Whereas their admission is sure to erente disturbance with delegations from the East and West. Ex-Mayar Barrett is maiduous in his efforts in behalf of pence. During the war he was an inmate of the Old Capitol for disloyalty, but to-day he seems to have been commissioned in the especial service of Thurlow Wood, as I judge from his converation and works. There will be a general execus for the Quaker City in the morning train.

This State has any number of delegations to Philadelphia. As the Saratoga nominees seem to be the most regu-lar, we append a list of them. Their politics are so well known to our readers that we simply designate those who hang by the coat tall of Mr. Weed, no matter where he goes or what be does. The other gentlemen are representatives morracy, Peace Democracy, brend and butter Republicans and fence compers generally. Here they are:

DELEGATES AT LABOR. - David R. Porter, ex Governor, during the war sympathized with the slaveholders and now with the waipped chivalry; William Bigler, ex Governor, was in the whipped chivairy; William Bigler, ex Governor, was in the confidence of the Rebel leaders, opposed the draft, and loved treason; William F. Packer is anything and everything, and would gladly sacrifice any party provided he could thereby advance his own political fortunes; the Hon. George W. Woodward, now Chief Justice, ran for Governor three years ago on tha ticket of a party in league with the Rabellion, believed in Secession, and did not believe in giving bounties to soldiers. The ablest man probably in the delegation.

DISTRICT DELEGATES.—1st, the Hon. James Campbell, ex-symmathiars with the Rabellion: George M. Wharton, a life-lone pathizer with the Rebellion; George M. Wharton, a life-long Democrat, a good lawyer and sympathizer with Vallandig-ham; 23, Col. W. C. Patterson, a candidate for several offi-ces at the hands of Democrats; Richard Vaux, once Mayor, now college director, to be a blatant, nervous politician, with plenty of pretentions and very little brains, which have been exercised considerably in describing how he danced with a certain Queen-not Emma; 3d. John Robbins, defeated time and again when he ran as a Democrat for Mayor of Philadel-phia: Daniel M. Fox, who suffered a like fate last Fall; 4th, Ellis Lewis, an ex-Chief Justice, whose coliness for the funtion's cause was not concealed; Charles Brown, a wrangling, noisy politician, who will thing politically or live anywhere to obtain office; 5th, W. W.
